TITLE: Performance Analysis of Multi-Modal Overlay/Underlay Switching Service Levels in Cognitive Radio Networks

AUTHORS: Alfa, Attahiru S.; Abu Ghazaleh, Haitham; Maharaj, B.T.

ABSTRACT: Cognitive radio networks have become a popular platform for many systems and applications of the future, and especially for Smart City applications and the Internet of Things. The wireless transceivers used for communicating between the different devices in the cognitive radio networks can operate in either of the two modes, namely overlay and underlay, or a hybrid of these two modes, while attempting to utilize the frequency channels from a spectrum band that is licensed to a different network. The device is said to be operating in the overlay mode when that channel is unoccupied by its primary user. In the underlay mode, the device can be permitted to transmit on the same channel while it is being occupied, provided that the transmissions occur at a low enough power that does not cause any significant interference to its primary user. While operating in the underlay mode, secondary users are likely to experience varying transmission rates due to the fluctuating power levels from the primary users. This has the effect of the channel capacity being dynamic, which forces the secondary user to switch between different transmission rates, or "service modes", during a single networking session.

In our previous work, we developed a discrete time queueing model for analyzing the performance of secondary users in such networks with multi-modal overlay/underlay switching service levels. In this paper, we extend our previous results to present our proposed method for computing the waiting-time distribution of the secondary users. Such results are essential for investigating the sensitivity of the secondary user's performance due to the queueing delays, and especially for real-time applications.

Per Section 8.2.1.C.4 of the IEEE PSPB Operations Manual, information contained in an article under review is confidential and shall not be shared with others, nor shall reviewers use non-public information contained in an article to advance their own research or financial interests.

Per Section 8.2.2.A.2 of the IEEE PSPB Operations Manual, all editors and referees shall immediately DECLINE from review of articles in which there exists a conflict of interest.

If you have any questions, please contact the article administrator: Mr. Anand Sharma anand.sharma@ieee.org.
In addition, if you would like to get a certificate after completing this review, please send an email to ieeeaccess@ieee.org.

Invitation to Review from Journal of Computer Science

Dear SUJATHA KAMEPALLI,

I am writing to request if you would be able to review manuscript # 5805-JCS, entitled "Optimizing Software Effort Estimation Models Using Back Propagation versus Radial Base Function Networks ", which has been submitted for consideration in Journal of Computer Science. The manuscript's abstract is provided below.

Abstract: Software development effort estimation became a very important and vital tool for many researchers in different fields. Software estimation used in controlling, organizing and achieving projects in the required time and cost to avoid the financial punishments due to the time delay and other different circumstances that may happen. Good project cost estimation will lead to a project success and reduce the risk of project failure. In this paper, we used two different neural network models, the Back-propagation algorithm versus the radial base algorithm. A comparison was done between the suggested models to find the best model that can reduce the project risks related to time and increase the profit by achieving the demands of the required project in time. The two models were implemented on the NASA public dataset. This dataset consists of 60 projects data, divided into 45 data samples for training and 15 data samples for testing. From the result obtained we can clearly say that the performance of the back-propagation neural network in both training and testing cases was better than the radial base function, so the back-propagation algorithm can be recommended as a useful tool in the software effort and cost estimation.

Abstract:

Various methods of measuring usability have their challenges in choosing the appropriate parameters due to different criteria and weighting criteria that vary between one practitioner/researcher to another. Several researchers apply the Fuzzy Analytical Hierarchy Process (FAHP) method to support weight by subjective human judgment and hierarchical structure. Logarithmic Fuzzy Preference Programming (LFPP) based on the non-linear method is one approach in deriving crisp weight from the FAHP pairwise matrix. However, there is a lack of LFPP method in determining the consistency of expert judgment on fuzzy pairwise comparison matrices that causes invalid weight. This research proposes the Modified LFPP (MLFPP) method to solve learning the consistent judgment for specifying the value of importance weights in measuring the usability of an e-commerce website, especially the B2C website. The MLFPP using arctan for the boundary of function had been implemented to increase the consistency index. The numerical experiments showed that the consistency index of fuzzy pairwise comparison matrices obtained by the MLFPP method was more significant in describing fuzzy consistency than those of the LFPP method. The result of an experimental example shows that the usability score rank using LFPP and MLFPP has a positive and perfect correlation.

Engineers' Day

The VFSTR celebrated Engineer's Day organized by Student Activities Council. The Engineering Community across India is celebrating Engineers Day on 15 September every year as a remarkable tribute to the greatest Indian Engineer Bharat Ratna Mokshagundam Visvesvaraya (popularly known as Sir MV). He is held in high regard as a pre-eminent engineer in India. This event is organized to create awareness for students and faculty on role of engineers in the development of our Nation. The Inaugural ceremony commenced at 10:47AM with the Vignan's theme song presented by Music Club. Dr.MSS Rukmini, Dean Student Affairs addressed the gathering with a welcome speech and appreciated the students who are academically and technically active in the university, which is then followed by the lamp lighting ceremony at 10:57 AM by the dignitaries. Dr.M.S.Ragunathan, Registrar lectured the gallery with the achievements of Bharat Dr.Ratna Mokshagundam

Celebrating M. Visvesvaraya's 158th birth anniversary

Engineers Day is celebrated every year on September 15 in India to pay tribute to one of the greatest Indian engineers Sir Mokshagundam Visvesvaraya, he was also known as Sir MV. It is also celebrated in Sri Lanka and Tanzania.

Sir MV was born in the erstwhile Mysore state (now Karnataka) in Muddenahalli village on September 15, 1861, he was a revered Indian civil engineer, scholar and statesman. He was also the 19th Diwan of Mysore, and served from 1912 to 1918. He was called the Father of Modern Mysore State on account of his extensive work towards the upliftment of the state.

Among his many achievements, Sir MV was also responsible for the construction of Mysore's Krishna Raja Sagara Dam where he was the chief engineer. He also held the position of chief designer for the flood protection system in Hyderabad. His efforts were recognised by the Indian government and it was for this that he was awarded the Bharat Ratna award, India's highest civilian honour, in 1955.

And in 1915, he was also bestowed with the title of Sir for his contributions for the good of the public, he was knighted by King George V as a Knight Commander of the British Indian Empire (KCIE).

The design and patent of the automatic weir floodgates is also attributed to Sir MV. These were first installed in Pune's Khadakwasla reservoir in 1903. Sir MV then went on to take up a position at the Public Works Department (PWD) of Mumbai, then Bombay. His usual work at the Public Works Department mostly involved the construction of roads, the maintenance of public buildings and city-planning of many important towns.

Given his many achievements and contributions to the development of India, not only engineers but all of India proudly celebrated Engineers Day today.

Visvesvaraya who were the esteemed Engineer of India and also enthused the students to reach the further objectives of their lives. M.Y.S.Prasad (Vice-Chancellor) quantified the importance of Engineer's day celebrations at the University and inspired the students with his speech. Honourable guest, G.Hari prasadsustained the event by sharing the challenges he had to tackle in his life in order to achieve success. He motivated the students by giving them some tips to be followed in order to achieve success. Dr. CD Balaji, the guest of honor conveyed Engineer's Day wishes to all the students and cited the success of India on the subject of Chandrayaan-2 and described the Aeronautical science in detail. The Guests were felicitated by the Dignities. The prizes were distributed to the students who have taken their parts in the competitions conducted by the university, namely Technical quiz, Paper presentation, Debate, and project expo. The event was concluded at 12:17 PM with the vote of thanks by the students, followed by national anthem.

Debate competition

The debate is one of the academic activities that give students the creative room to express what they sense. The depth of knowledge that they improve through this is simply unparalleled. VFSTR has set the benchmark for conducting activities in such a way that the students not only relish but also acquire a great pact from it. Debate provides experiences that are conducive to life-changing, cognitive, and presentational skills. With the same perspective in view, the Inter-University Debate Competition was held on the eve of Engineer's Day. The debate commenced with the arrival of Ajith Pradan, who was the esteemed judge for the competition. Ajith Pradan appealed the contestants about the topic and rules. With the topic chosen, "Importance of gender sensitized campus for healthy and interaction among students" Some participants argued for the motion and

The event was chaired by Dr. A. Sharada, Convenor, AFD. The Employment Orientation Programme was conducted from 17th January to 10th May 2019. A total of 54 students participated in EOP- 2019. The details of departments are AE- 01, BT- 02, ECE-12 (ES-06+ VLSI-06) EEE-04, Mech- 05, CSE-15, Civil- 14 and FT-01. The classes were arranged in accordance with mentor support from all the departments to assess students' performance and evaluate and give feedback progress time to time. 6th & 7th Periods were allotted on Tuesday, Wednesday for Batch-1 and for Batch-2, Thursday and Friday. The programme has significantly achieved its expected outcomes.

abreast with what they have learnt without forgetting the knowledge gained to ensure and maintain same tempo while facing the interviews as and when called. She also recalled that many of our previous students who have done EOP are very much successful in teaching field and as well as in the industry. In the first EOP in 2016 alone, we had more than 65 students got immediately selected for teaching jobs and in our university about 23. A programme will be successful and yields exceedingly very good results, it's because of the intensity and commitment of students to learn and overcome their stage fear and face the audience with well prepared presentations. Vignan is awarded with National Patent

In a press meet announced on Saturday (15/09/19) Dr M Y Prasad Vice chancellor of VFSTR announced that Vignan was awarded with patent for making a combined effort on a project by the faculty & the students.

The details of the project are:

Normally everyone uses converters for converting the AC electricity to DC electricity in LED Bulbs, Laptops, Computers, LED Bulbs and street lights etc. so currently these type of converters that are being used are consuming lot of energy and in order to reduce the utilization the project is focused on reduction of such consumption by the department of EEE, by using the latest technology concept in switch mode converters.

Patent offered by:

Vignan university has applied to the patent to Government of India by detailing the project particulars. The Government of India after making a detailed study on the same for around 6 months of time concluded it as a unique invention and awarded the patent to this project. The patent council has stated that this invention will increase the modern charges life and capability.

Who all are participated for the project:

EEE Dept research scholars Mr Mirayudu, V Nagesh gave their valuable support for the project, for which the EEE Dept HoD Dr G Srinivasa Rao has acted as head.

What the work has carried out:

The project which changes the electrical instruments scenario as "Realising ZVS and ZDCS in Continuous conduction Boost Inverter with boundary mode controller" and basing on this technology they have invented the new level chargers for usage. This instrument will be useful for converting the AC power to DC power, usually 1 to 2 volts are sufficient for running electronic items like laptops, for which we usually consume 220 volts which is a high wastage, which is around a wastage of 26% followed by capability reduction of the items, and the same can be controlled by using this invented elements and the consumption rate comes to 8% capability increases by 2 to 5%.

Advantages of the Project:

In regard to the new project the capability of instruments increase and the power consumption reduces and globally the power consumption factor can be reduced.
